FUND MANAGER COMMENTS

The Fund outperformed its cash benchmark in September. Risk assets rallied, due to strong US economic data and the announcement of stimulus measures in China. European structured credit had a strong month, with junior tranches in higher beta sectors performing best, as they remain a source of a high-quality yield and benefit from constrained supply. Issuance remained robust across the asset class, but net growth is limited, despite growing demand. US structured credit saw elevated supply and unwavering demand, as many deals were oversubscribed. Secondary activity picked up in the second half of the month. Spreads were supported by strong technical demand. It was a quiet month on the new lending side. We invested in asset-backed securities in Australia and short mezzanine profiles in Europe. Performance was driven by carry and the sharp contraction in the basis between middle market and broadly syndicated loan collateralised loan obligations.
